First name: Brett

Last name: Watson

Q1:

Scrap the old one entirely and make a new one

Q2:

Inform the public so that we can make a decision on what we view or let our children view. Not censoring content because it "could" be considered offensive or it upsets a group as consenting adults we should be allowed to make up our own minds on what we view or let our children view

Q3:

No media is media regardless of what form it is consumed

Q4:

Yes the current classification system does not work and seriously hinders small video game developers and as the amount of media increases it will become impossible to classify everything that is produced

Q5:

No let the people who want to view it view it and others leave it alone

Q6:

Q7:

Providing consumer advice only access should never be restricted as consenting adults should be able to make a decision on what we view

Q8:

Classified yes

Q9:

No all media should be self regulated and only reviewed after a complaint

Q10:

No

Q11:

Q12:

There is no effective method as the very nature of the internet makes blocking content impossible as a simple VPN client can circumvent any blocks you put in place. The money spent implementing the system would be better spent on educating the public on online safety on on the AFP to shutdown the worst of the worst

Q13:

Parents need to take an active role in controlling what content their children consume this is the only sure fire way to control what media children consume online. Blocking can be circumvented very easily by VPN's and other items that come preinstalled with every operating system

Q14:

Parents need to take control of their children and the shop owners need to ask for id before they sell the magazines

Q15:

After a complaint has been made much in the way the ACCC posts notices after a breach of consumer regulation

Q16:

Government should have no role in regulation unless a complaint has been made. The main roles should fall on the industry to self regulate.

Users should ignore content that they don't want to consume and stop trying to impose their views on those who want to consumer the media

Q17:

Yes

Q18:

Everything unless a complaint is made

Q19:

Australian independent films only that have no links to foreign bodies

Q20:

RC is the only one that causes confusion as it seems everything that violent/pornographic falls into that as the guidelines are all encompassing

Q21:

No just expand the R rating

Q22:

Make them the Same

Q23:

Q24:

None

Q25:

No it is too encompassing as it includes alot of categories fetish's,medical,political which consenting adults should be allowed to view

Q26:

One law for all Australia

Q27:

Q28:

Yes

Q29:

Allow for adult content to be hosted in Australia stop pushing our business overseas.

Stop telling us what we can and cant access. If the content is consensual then consenting adults have every right to view it
