

CI 1016 C Free

First name: Cetra

Last name: Free

Q1:

It should be improved to be aligned to a more international standard allowing for freedom for adults to choose for themselves rather than pandering to people wanting to protect children.

Q2:

Allowing adults and people of a mature age to make a decision for themselves about what types of media they consume.

Introducing an R18+ Rating for Video games.

More transparency in the classification process.

Q3:

Yes. For Instance, the Internet should remain free of classification in order to nurture creativity and expression. Works of art should also not be classified regardless of platform.

Q4:

Only for things such as advertisements or any other media that is unavoidable in every day life.

Q5:

If it is artistic impact or social commentary it should not be classified. Classification should not hinder freedom of expression.

Q6:

No, it should be fair for everyone.

Q7:

Artworks should not be classified at all.

Q8:

If they are used in education or schools then they should have some classification. Otherwise no, maintaining freedom of expression is paramount.

Q9:

No, it should be fair for everyone.

Q10:

If it is unavoidable in public, such as advertisements, then it should be classified.

Q11:

At the moment classification does not trust the consumer to make his own choice. When something is refused classification it has far reaching consequences.

Q12:

There is no real effective method to control access to online content. Every single method of classification can be circumvented.

Q13:

Education is key, not censorship. Supervision and revision of site history is also effective.

Q14:

Q15:

During the sale of any media forms or before broadcast on public television.

Q16:

Governments should suggest classifications but not ban the sale of content that is refused classification.

Q17:

Yes

Q18:

TV, Movies, Video games, Advertisement.

Q19:

Classification should be fair for everybody.

Q20:

They are mostly understood.

Q21:

Yes, there needs to be an R18+ Rating for video games and an even higher classification for sexually explicit content in all media.

There should never be a situation where content is refused classification.

Q22:

Having consistent grades for each media.

Q23:

Yes and an R18+ rating should be introduced.

Q24:

No content should be prohibited access.

Q25:

No content should be prohibited.

Q26:

It should be a federal law, not a state or territory law.

Q27:

It should be a federal law, not a state or territory law.

Q28:

Yes

Q29:

It needs to be more aligned to an International standard in order to promote globalisation of Australia.

Other comments:

The freedom of expression is something that should be kept safe.

There should never be such a thing as refused classification. There should never be such a thing as refused classification.

An R18+ rating for video games needs to be introduced as a minimum.