Q1:

Yes

Q2:

Adding a Higher Class. that Includes R18+ to cover highly violent or Sexual or Drug concepts

Q3:

Regardless on being a platform or using a controller the consumer is still subjected to media content

Q4:

No, if a complaint is made then it is already too late.

Q5:

Yes, the severity of potential impact should affect class. Content designed for children should be classified the same across all media.

Q6:

No it shouldn't

Q7:

Yes

Q8:

If they are severely exposing excessive Violence, Sexual, Drug themes then yes

Q9:

It should run on the same rule. Keeping consistency in the final classification.

Q10:

No, Same rules.

Q11:

Any excessive Adult themes. If just like movies, consumers deserve to be pre warned. If an action or situation would be banned in high school then that particular concept or action should be classified to keep it out of children's easy reach.

Q12:

We're after classifications not control

Q13:

Classification and awareness

Q14:

I'm sure access to these are already controlled well.

Q15:

Again, excessive Violence, Sexual, Drugs, any excessive Adult themes. Consistent rules from video, magazine or digital media.

Q16:

Their role is to implement a fair and practical Rating system

Q17:

Mould support the growth of the industry. Would be able to govern and set penalties for non-compliance

Q18:

If a rating system is in place then it should be used on all content. Consistency.

Q19:

Yes, smaller groups should be subsidised. The cost could reflect potential audience.

Q20:

Currently G and PG are understood. Difference between M and MA is not clear. MA dosnot go far enough in warning parents of excessive themes.

Q21:

Movies already have R and X ratings. Games need to bought within these same guidelinss.

Q22:

All Media needs a consistant classification.. It all has the potential to impact an audience

Q23:

Yes

Q24:

All Adults have the right to chose what they do or not access on line. It dos need to be protected from underage access.

Q25:

Prohibition is only a minor deterant. Just because it wasn't alowed classification people will find a way.

Q26:

Of corse it should be consistant

Q27:

Why Should it?

Q28:

Yes

Q29:

As above, R Ratings and X Ratings on games that are to violent or excessive themes, as movie and video are.
