First name: Ben

Last name: Davies

Q1:

Developing a new framework, as the current one is out of date

Q2:

A fair classification scheme, taking into consideration of the general age of gamers.. They're not children

Q3:

No

Q4:

Of course there's always someone that complains about something, but why can the minority rule things out for the majority?

Q5:

Yes, classification is needed to keep boundaries. Children can't see R rated movies. Why can't adult gamers have the option and choice for R rated games?

Q6:

Yes

Q7:

Artwork is a portrayal of self expression.

Q8:

Isn't it already

Q9:

Yes, so it doesn't get into the hands of a minor

Q10:

No

Q11:

Everything.

Q12:

Parental lock

Q13:

Parental lock, parents actually paying attention to what their child is doing

Q14:

Those blacked out bags

Q15:

At all times

Q19:

No

Q20:

The non-existence of an R18+ classification for video games

Q21:

There should be a R18+ classification for video games as we're the only western country without such classification

Q22:

The markings are fine

Q23:

Yes

Q24:

Child porn

Q25:

No

Q26:

Q27:

A fair, up to date one

Q28:

Yes

Q29:

Grow up

Other comments:

It's about time we grow up. We're not all children here. Bring in the R rated classifications for games.
