Last name: O'Donoghue

Q1:

The current framework is inconsistent at times but that is expected and seems to work most of the time.

I assume developers have an appeal process for RC, if not, there needs to be an easy way to appeal a decision.

Q2:

Stopping children from playing adult games

Q3:

Yes, if the internet is being used in a title then the standard 13+ should apply.

Q4:

No, all content should be classified.

Q5:

All media should be classified.

Q6:

No

Q7:

No

Q8:

Yes

Q9:

No

Q10:

Yes, something that is accessed in public should be classified more critically since the audience do not have the chance to opt out of seeing the content (at least not the first time).

Q11:

Q12:

Making the public aware that the content is not classified, you can't control this cost effectively.

Q13:

Informing parents to take responsibility

Q14:

All explicit magazines (even soft core) should be encased in plastic if they sold where children have access to them

Q15:

Whenever they are over PG rated...?

Q16:

Q17:

Q18:

Q19:

Locally made, low budget films and games should be subsidised, budgets of 50K or under. There is not enough support for the industry...

Q20:

Why isn't there an R18+?

Q21:

R18+

Merge MA15+ and M together

Q22:

Q23:

Q24:

Illegal content

Q25:

No. Everything list in RC should be allowed for adults except for (C) but only if it directly promotes, incites or instructs not if it indirectly does these things by making crime/violence look fun.

(a) describe, depict, express or otherwise deal with matters of sex, drug misuse or addiction, crime, cruelty, violence or revolting or abhorrent phenomena in such a way that they offend against the standards of morality, decency and propriety generally accepted by reasonable adults to the extent that they should not be classified; or

(b) describe or depict in a way that is likely to cause offence to a reasonable adult, a person who is, or appears to be, a child under 18 (whether the person is engaged in sexual activity or not); or

(c) promote, incite or instruct in matters of crime or violence
