Q1:

The ALRC should focus on improving key elements of the existing framework while developing new ones.

Q2:

The primary objective should be to make people of all ages aware of the content of the media and platform they are viewing/listening to.

Q3:

No, media across all platforms should be rated the same

Q4:

No, all content should be classified.

Q5:

All media on all platforms should be classified regardless who it is for ie, children, adults

Q6:

Regardless of how small an audience, or market, content should be classified the same across all platforms

Q7:

All artwork should be classified.

Q8:

Yes

Q9:

No, regardless for 1 or 100,000 the content should be classified the same.

Q10:

No, regardless for public or private usage, content should still be classified.

Q11:

There should be no influence. All content should be classified across all platforms the same so that everyone knows the correct classification for the content they are accessing.

Q12:

Nothing should be restricted. Only classified fully.

Q13:

It can be controlled by classifying content and making parents aware of the classification of the content before accessing it.

Q14:

Classification awareness by parents.

Q15:

All classification stickers should be shown.

Q16:

They should be upholding their classification content across all platforms by applying fines for anyone who does not abide by the classification.

Q17:

No

Q18:

None, All content should be classified properly.

Q19:

Nothing should be subsidised, as all media across all platforms will be classified the same way. No confusion.

Q20:

All ratings cause confusion. The biggest being the MA15+. Because the rating encompasses so much content under one umbrella. A lot of the MA15+ games should have an R18+ rating.

Q21:

G, PG, M, R18+ Abolish the MA15+ excessive content and bump it up to R18+

Q22:

If you have the same rating for all content across all media platforms then consistency will always happen
