Q1:

Yes a new system should be implemented and the old one updated.

Q2:

How much violence/blood/cursive language there is in a game. Comparison to the classifications systems they have around the world.

Q3:

All classifications should be equal to all gaming platforms. A universal classification should be set to make it uncomplicated.

Q4:

Disagree. Some people whine too much. Classification should be similar to movie classification and a universal system. If minors are playing a game that is over the M rating it is on the parents to make sure they don't play it. People need to take responsibility for their children as to not affect the rest of us.

Q5:

Yes. All violent/games with language and blood should be classified higher than children games...then again if there is an option in a game to tur these off in the settings then maybe make it a M/PG.

Q6:

loaded question in this one. All material.games should be classified to a degree

Q7:

Yes...some games have explicit scene...sometimes just a kiss is a bit explicit,especially if the female has large breasts.

Q8:

Yes it should. Some of the sound recordings can sound absolutely disgusting...this should be included in the rating system.

Q9:

No. It should still be classified.

Q10:

No. It should still be classified.

Q11:

Music,sound-effects,graphics (how explicit),cut-scenes,amount of blood, amount of violence and course language should all be factors.

Q12:

Parent email account for underage people...

Q13:

Parent email account for underage people...however children are such hackers these days.

Q14:

Don't print them....

Q15:

All content should have a classification...including all magazines, novels, online pages, movies, games, etc.

Q16:

Making it lawfull.

Q17:

Q18:

All content

Q19:

nothing should be subsidised

Q20:

I understand all classifications, I assume everyone else does too.

Q21:

I feel that a lot of R rating stuff should be MA15+...again up to the parents to supervise this decision

Q22:

If they make a universal classification it should be understood by everyone with confusion from different countries.

Q23:

Consolidated and revised.

Q24:

Access is up to the user and should not be prohibited. Exemptions such as murder,rape,animal cruelty, self harm, gun making, bomb making all the illegal crap...I am sure you know where that was all heading.

Q25:

Q26:

It is important if you want everyone to know the classification. Make it universal,

Q27:

Q28:

Yes

Other comments:

I feel that the games need to be taken a look at when it comes to gaming as magazines. Some magazines are inappropriate for youngsters...like Marie clare. The only magazine that has a classification is the pornographic ones. Games are being banned from Australia and not America...there should be a system implemented to make a universal classification and up to the individual to play. Under age children should be supervised with older content games if the parents are stupid enough to let their kids play them and therefore they should be liable for the consequences...this should not affect grown ups from playing R rated games if they choose to. Parents are liable for their children if they are caught buying alcohol or cigarettes therefore what is the difference in buying/playing certain rated games?
