CI 719 A Holiday

First name: Andrew
Last name: Holliday
Q1:
The former.
Q2:
To make all games available to their target audiences. It really is that simple.
Q3:
No.
Q4:
No. All content should be classified.
Q5:
Children should not be playing games that have significant "impact". It is up to the parents and businesses to regulate their childs access to certain content, and if they don't it is their shortcoming.
People over the age of 18 should have access to ALL content and not be denied enjoyment simply because businesses are too lazy to regulate the selling of said classified products and parents don't care enough to properly raise their children.
Q6:
No.
Q7:
No.
Q8:
No. If the music is also "high impact" then the game most likely is too, thus nullifying the need to classify it too. Also, music can simply be played over any game regardless thanks to our generations consoles ease-of-use features.
Q9:
No.
Q10: No.
Q11:
Common sense.
Q12:
Don't try to control it to begin with. Access to online content should be monitored by the parents, not by the government.
Q13:
Have decent parents.
Q14:
See above.
Q15:
When it's given them.

Q16:
Government agencies should classify them.
Industry bodies should regulate them.
Users should Use them.
Q17:
Yes.
Q18:
Mortal Kombat. If you had a childhood, classification of this game goes without saying.
Q19:
Yes to the example.
Q20:
They are understood well enough, except for the lack of th R18+ rating. I don't think anyone understands that.
Q21:
See above.

No? Same concept. It's subjective, it depends entirely on you as an individual, group, collective, community, your religious beliefs, and your moral code. What you find innapropriate I manot and you want to make laws about this?
