

CI 931 T Bloor

First name: Terence

Last name: Bloor

Q1:

A new framework for classification is required, the current system is archaic

Q2:

To protect younger age groups from accessing material classified above their age

Q3:

Classification should be standard across the board, rather than dependent on technology or platform

Q4:

All purchasable content should be classified

Q5:

All purchasable content should be classified

Q6:

All purchasable content should be classified

Q7:

Customer should be advised so that they may make an informed decision

Q8:

Yes

Q9:

All purchasable content should be classified

Q10:

All purchasable content should be classified

Q11:

All purchasable content should be classified

Q12:

Content that should be kept from younger age groups should be policed by the parents of the individual

Q13:

Parents need to be informed on "net nanny" style software so that they can install and use the software

Q14:

Restrictions on sale areas

Q15:

On physical or digital product

Q16:

Government agencies to classify, industry bodies to implement and enforce and users to understand what they are buying

Q17:

Assuming the industry is kept to strict guidelines, then yes.

Q18:

Sexually explicit material

Q19:

No, they should all be put in the same system

Q20:

No, ambiguity is a problem

Q21:

Yes, the categories need to be looked at and restructured. Some merged and possibly another added.

Q22:

Have a system that encompasses all media formats

Q23:

Yes

Q24:

Child pornography and similar illegal sexual activity

Q25:

Yes

Q26:

Yes

Q27:

Not sure

Q28:

Yes

Q29:

Simplify across the board

Other comments: