Hi, I would like to let you know the Use of Cell Lines and Human Tissue Laws

Should be free of human ethics approval by default.

Unreasonable complications in the research are not helping anyone, not researchers not potential patients that benefit from the research.

Cells line are not human tissues; they are research tools and anyone with some background knowledge knows that it is impossible to be ethical or unethical with those cells.

In relation to the new cell lines, the method and need for their creation could be discussed but it should be a fast and straightforward way to get approval for creation of such cell line. Scientists are not creating something just for fun, we make and use cells lines because it is necessary for the research purposes.

Thanks,

Sincerely,

Sergey
